Comparative Analysis (PA) is a methodology within Political Science which deals with the scientific study of Political System, Process or institutions –

Local, Regional, National, International –

PC is used to understand the nature and working of different political systems -

To understand how laws and Constitutions are Observed -

To know the connection between political and non-political dimensions -

To understand the attitude of citizens to the Political System-

Enables us to understand why similar phenomena do not produce similar results – labour movement in France, India so aggressive not in U K

Contd.....

May provide us with a valuable conceptual tool – gap of political theory

Made Political Science a complete Social science

Dennis Kavanagh

It examines the performance of different political systems-

It influences input-output process of Political System-

It helps us to know the direction of Political Development

Helpful in bringing Progressive Political Change-

Contd.....

It has changed our study centre from individual to society

Behaviouralists – study of individual/ study of political community or group

It tells us certain guidelines for Political Behaviour -

It has made PSc more Pragmatic and Dynamic -

It lessens micro-macro gap in Political System -

Thank you!
